

Grand Union Flag

The Grand Union flag, also called the Navy Ensign flag, or the Congress Colors, is considered America's first national flag. It was first flown by John Paul Jones on December 2, 1775 on a Philadelphia ship named Alfred and was used by the Continental Army as a naval ensign and garrison flag in 1776 and 1777.